Dear (Insert Name of Parent),

Throughout history, there have been evangelistic movements that have shaped the destiny of the nations. More recently, something began in the hearts of hundreds of Christians across the United States. They came together and realized that on their own, there would be no way they could reach the near 2.2 billion people who have never heard the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Some people fly half way around the world to construct a building that costs half the price of the plane ticket. At Missions.Me, we believe the needs of the world and the cause of Christ is significant enough that a missions outreach must be strategic. For that reason, the staff leverages every moment of every trip. From day one, your son or daughter will begin a series of outreaches that engage people in direct ministry. You'll take God's love to the streets, or wherever people are at. You'll engage them through dramas, dances, and games and then share a message of hope. Everything Missions.Me does is in direct partnership with the local church. So the powerful ministry moments are not the end, but the beginning of life transformation.

Missions.Me operates in the highest level of safety having successfully led thousands of young people on foreign missions outreaches.

We believe that while your son or daughter brings sudden transformation to this nation, they themselves will be suddenly transformed in the process. For 8 days they will leave the peer pressure and their "normal" routine behind and give themselves fully to the fulfillment of the Great Commission. As they partner with hundreds of other young people doing the same, positive peer pressure will begin to happen. Their "normal" routine will become being used by God in a significant way. In addition to receiving a global perspective, they will always have a soft heart for the hurting and broken people of the world.
